

PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

I am a UI/UX designer driven by empathy and curiosity. I believe great design starts with truly understanding people: their needs, their struggles, and the details that shape how they experience the world. My background in sketching and visual storytelling gave me an early love for turning ideas into something tangible. Over time, that passion evolved into designing digital products that not only look good but make life simpler and more intuitive. What excites me most is the psychology behind design, how a small interaction can make someone feel understood, or how clarity can remove frustration. That's why I focus on building inclusive, user-centered experiences that create real impact.
